

Seven “DIGIT” Hues

Actor • Artist • Designer • Creative Architect

Seven “Digit” Hues is a powerhouse multidisciplinary talent whose career spans acting, music, fashion, and creative innovation. An award-winning recording artist who headlined the national tour The Summer of SUM for three consecutive years, Seven brings the same commanding presence from the stage to screen, blending artistry with authenticity at every level.

With over 20 stage productions to date, Seven has built a formidable reputation as a performer known for emotional depth, charisma, and realism. His most recent theatrical performances — How Can I Be a Father When I’m Not Done Being a Son and Mama B’s Press and Curl (where he delivered a standout portrayal of Bartow) mark a major milestone, solidifying two decades of stage excellence and storytelling mastery.

Expanding his impact to television, Seven currently stars in the new series Relationships, portraying Rod (Rodrick) — a driven music producer navigating ambition, love, and family dynamics. The role aligns seamlessly with Seven’s real-world experience in music and creative leadership, allowing him to bring rare nuance and credibility to the screen.

Beyond performance, Seven is the visionary designer behind GENIE 7, a fashion-forward lifestyle brand fusing elevated streetwear with narrative-driven design. He is also the creator of Padsy, an emerging property management solution that recently achieved a $3M pre-cash valuation, positioning Seven as a rising force in tech-enabled entrepreneurship.

Seven is also Founder/CEO of 7th Wonder, a national full-service business branding firm with over 20 years of excellence, shaping brands, platforms, and creative identities nationwide.

Digit is currently represented through a new management deal with 1977 The Agency, and is signed to Moonroof Entertainment, his entertainment and distribution label, supporting his continued expansion across film, television, music, fashion, and live experiences.

Known for seamlessly blending creativity with strategy, Seven “Digit” Hues operates at the intersection of culture and commerce — crafting stories, building platforms, and shaping moments that move people. Whether commanding the stage, captivating the camera, or designing next-generation ventures, Seven embodies modern excellence: bold, refined, and purpose-driven.

With a growing screen presence, a proven theatrical legacy, charted music success, and a portfolio of innovative brands, Seven “Digit” Hues stands as a sought-after actor, host, and creative collaborator — a dynamic force in entertainment and a name audiences and industries alike are learning to remember.
